Before you start

This manual describes how you play tracks from streaming services on AlphaTheta products.

Please also read the instruction manuals of your DJ equipment, etc.

About streaming services

To use a streaming service, you'll need a subscription. For more information on streaming services and regions they're available in, visit the website for each service.

Playing audio files via streaming services

When a streaming service is selected on the [SOURCE] screen, audio files from the streaming service can be played from the browse screen of the unit.

- The time it takes to load audio files depends on the speed of your internet connection. You can view the loading progress in the overall waveform on the waveform screen.
- Depending on the streaming service you're using, track information such as Key/BPM may not be displayed on the [BROWSE] screen.
- The following playback functions are only available for tracks currently loaded, and the data won't be saved.
 - Memory Cue/Loop
 - Hot Cue/Loop point
- Audio files are loaded 1 by 1 from the track list. The following functions aren't available.
 - Track search
 - [Continue] in Play mode

Internet speed

The time needed for library synchronization and track loading varies greatly depending on the strength of your internet connection. An internet speed of 20 Mbps or higher is recommended for loading tracks.

Troubleshooting

If you think something is wrong with the unit, check the information below and refer to the [FAQ] at the URL below.

alphatheta.com/support/

◆ Can't use streaming services

- Check the internet connection.
- Use a USB storage device with enough free space if you're logging in via USB authentication.

If there isn't enough free space on the USB storage device, you can't use streaming services. It's recommended to use a USB storage device with 1 GB or more of free space.

◆ Tracks aren't displayed on the track list

- Check you have an applicable subscription to use the streaming service.

◆ Can't use the recording function

- You can't record when playing music from streaming services.
